Subject: Jackee Brown Hearing today in Superior Court.

Jackee Brown, accompanied by her husband, Gavin Brown, Mayor of Waynesville, whose brother is Steve Brown, currently running for County Commissioner (not present), attended a hearing today in Superior Court.

Judge Lett's did not preside, rather it was a new rotating judge, and I was not able to get his name.

The Ramsey's were present.

Jackee Brown had recovered her drivers license and had been seen driving around town by Terry Ramsey who reported it to the DA's office.

Jeff Jones, Assistant District Attorney (ADA) made the case for the state, and Jim Moore [re: <http://haywoodtp.net/pubII/141002MooreBarComplaint.pdf>] defended Jackee Brown. Jeff Jones made a motion to either:

- Order Defendant to not operate a vehicle upon the streets or highways of North Carolina during the pendency of her case,
- Or, in the alternative, order Defendant to not possess or consume alcohol during the pendency of her case, and that Defendant shall be monitored by a continuous alcohol screening device at her expense.

Gavin Brown stated that they didn't have the money for the expensive alcohol monitoring device, and that they had to borrow the money to post bond money from her aunt.

The judge, who had reviewed the horrendous photographs of the accident scene (not made public), ruled:

- The Defendant to not operate a vehicle upon the streets or highways of North Carolina during the pendency of her case,
- And, continue to participate in Alcoholics Anonymous.

The next hearing is May 2, 2016.
