UPDATE - Part 5

Subject: Email Dialog with Jesse Fowler/Martha Sharpe Bradley - Locker Room Use at the Rec Center.

This is an email dialog with Jesse Fowler, Chief David Adams, Luke Kinsland, and Martha Sharpe Bradley, picking up where I left off with Part 4. See on www.haywoodtp.net

Part 4! Email dialog with Jesse Fowler, Chief David Adams, Luke Kinsland, and Martha Sharpe Bradley, re: "Locker Room Use at the Waynesville Recreation Center". Perpetuating a hoax and Lying by Omission? Martha Sharpe Bradley and Jesse Fowler have gone dark. 7/29/2023...

Martha Sharpe Bradley and Jesse Fowler have gone dark!

Martha Sharpe Bradley and Anthony Sutton lied referencing a WPD Investigation that never happened.

"Jess Scott says that while Detective Shell was taking his incident report yesterday, she stated that an (Investigation) was never done concerning this incident. Her statement directly contradicts Town Attorney Martha Bradley's memo and Councilman Anthony Sutton's statement (2nd paragraph)".

"Jess Scott Files Incident Report with WPD over Waynesville Rec. Center Incident Jess Scott (Parent and Sunday School Teacher) and Josh Skidmore (Pastor of Fines Creek Baptist Church) to Speak to Citizens and The Buttered Biscuit Next Thursday (8/3) Updated Speaker Schedule".

Email dialog continues...

Martha!

It's been five (5) days since I sent you my initial Request for Public Information, and nothing!. Are you still trying to figure out a way for me to "invade" the ladies locker room without inconveniencing any of the patrons? I am getting offers from women to clear out the locker room for me to insure I make a clean entrance and exit without freaking anyone out.

Say, I caught the following tid-bit in Cory Vaillancourt's article, entitled: Waynesville unites against hate and bigotry after false trans allegations - Written by Cory Vaillancourt, Friday, July 28, 2023, <https://smokymountainnews.com/news/item/36091-waynesville-unites-against-hate-and-bigotry-after-false-trans-allegations>,

Town Attorney Martha Bradley later weighed in, calling the previous two weeks some of the most difficult in her life.

Bradley said she'd had plenty of experience prosecuting child sex offenders in the past, and not one of those cases ever came from a women's restroom. She also courageously revealed — like several of the speakers earlier that evening — a painful chapter from her own past.

“I personally am a sexual assault survivor, and I can tell you that not one time did that happen in a women's restroom,” she said. “Like many of you, I also went to church every Sunday, in a deeply religious southern town. I had a few less mountains and a couple more swamps, but I'm grateful that that church never taught me to hate anyone. I'm grateful to have found a town that matches that message.”

Whether implicitly or explicitly, the arguments against North Carolina's public accommodations laws — including those made by Lovett and Hatcher — assume that the only reason a transgender person ever goes into a public restroom is for the purposes of child molestation.

A 2022 study by the ULCA School of Law says that in their survey of 964 incarcerated sex offenders, transgender respondents made up only seven-tenths of one percent.

“I hope that every person feels safe in this town. I hope that every grandfather knows that their granddaughters are safe in this town. I hope that every trans man and trans woman feels safe in this town,” Bradley continued. “And I can personally guarantee that as long as I'm town attorney I know for a fact that this board and this police department will protect any person whose personal space has been violated. If your granddaughters are inappropriately touched or approached by a man, please tell us. We care. If you are a trans woman in a woman's restroom, and you were attacked, we care. We want to know, because this is a town that protects itself.”

No one should have to be a victim of a sexual assault. I cannot imagine the aftermath of that for you. Do you suppose that the two girls in the Rec Center woman's locker room who were freaked out by the he/him/her/she/they/them/it/whatever transgender male who invaded the women's locker room who re-entered the Rec Center later in the day, with the same "day pass" that was issued to him on at 9:09am on 7/12/202, an instance of Indecent Exposure, will have the same experience, now imprinted in their young memories?

You said at the Town Council meeting - “And I can personally guarantee that as long as I'm town attorney I know for a fact that this board and this police department will protect any person whose personal space has been violated.”

You, of all people, must know what those two girls are going through.

Let me know when you finally approve Jesse Fowler showing the the afternoon surveillance video at the Rec Center on 7/12 and escorting Chief David Adams and myself into the women's locker room and sauna, so that I can take photos.

I'm certain there is going to be a Part 6.
